

September 20, 2011

Dear Colleague,

The Communication Sciences and Disorders Department at Worcester State University is pleased to announce a faculty position opening available September 2012. We would appreciate it if you could make the information known to your faculty and staff, and to your graduating doctoral students.

The position is a tenure-track position with a focus in Adult Neurogenetics. A Ph.D. and Certificate of Clinical Competence (CCC-SLP) is required. The position entails teaching undergraduate and graduate courses in the area of expertise, advising, clinical supervision, and involvement in department and university committees. Research in the applicant's area of expertise is expected. If you need additional information, you may contact Linda S. Larrivee, Department Chair at 508-929-8109.

Review of completed applications will begin December 2011. The search will remain open until the position is filled. Worcester State University fosters diversity and women and minorities are encouraged to apply.

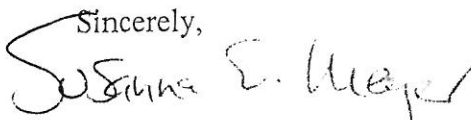

Worcester State University offers an undergraduate degree in Communication Sciences and Disorders as well as a Master's Degree in Speech-Language Pathology. The graduate program is accredited by the Council on Academic Accreditation (CAA) of the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association. The program also is approved by the Massachusetts Department of Education.

Worcester State University is located in central Massachusetts. The University has earned a reputation for quality teaching, classes of moderate size, and programs responsive to its students' and society's changing needs. The Princeton Review chose Worcester State University as one of the best colleges in the northeast for eight consecutive years.

All applicants are strongly advised to apply online through Interview Exchange (Please visit www.worcester.edu/hr and click 'employment opportunities' to apply). Contact Patrick Killeen at pkilleen@worcester.edu or by phone at 508.929.8053 for additional information. Necessary materials for submission include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, original transcripts of highest degree, and three signed letters of reference dated within six months of the posting date.

Thank you for making this information available to your faculty, staff and students.

Sincerely,

Susanna E Meyer, Ph.D., CCC-A
Search Committee Chair

Calvin R. Hill, Ph.D.
Director, Office of Diversity & Affirmative Action

Asst/Assoc. Professor Communication Sciences & Disorders

Job Description:

Worcester State University's Department of Communications Sciences & Disorders has an opening for a tenure-track position in speech-language pathology with a focus in Adult Neurogenics. Research in the applicant's area of expertise is expected. The position is available September 2012. Please contact Linda S. Larrivee, Department Chair at 508-929-8109 for additional information.

Requirements:

Ph. D, CCC-SLP required. The position entails teaching undergraduate courses, teaching graduate courses in the area of expertise including adult language/ neurogenics, advising, clinical supervision, and involvement in Department and University committees.

Additional Information:

Worcester State University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. M/F/D/V. Women and minorities are strongly encouraged to apply.

Application Instructions:

All applicants will apply online through Interview Exchange. Necessary materials for submission include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, original transcripts of highest degree, and 3 signed letters of reference dated within six months of the posting date. Information which cannot be uploaded by the applicant (or should come directly from the pertinent writer/registrar) may be sent to the following address:

Director of Human Resources
Worcester State University
486 Chandler Street
Worcester, MA 01602-2597